

DID YOU KNOW?

Graduating from Nebraska School for the Deaf would be one of the proudest moments that you had graduated from high school. Date back from 1869-1998.

Diploma or Certificate

Students earn a diploma or certificate by completing all the educational requirements set by their school, district, city, and state. Typical requirements include English, math, social studies, science, physical education, and vocational skills such as arts, home economics, woodshop, etc.

Graduation ceremony

The ceremony may include a procession, greetings, speeches, presentations, and music. The procession may include the singing of the national anthem, speeches, and graduating class. Greetings may include introductions from the principal and board. Speeches may be given by student speakers such as Valedictorian, Salutatorian, and guest speakers. Presentations may include the awarding of diplomas. The ceremony may end with more music and graduates marching and lining up for hands shaking.

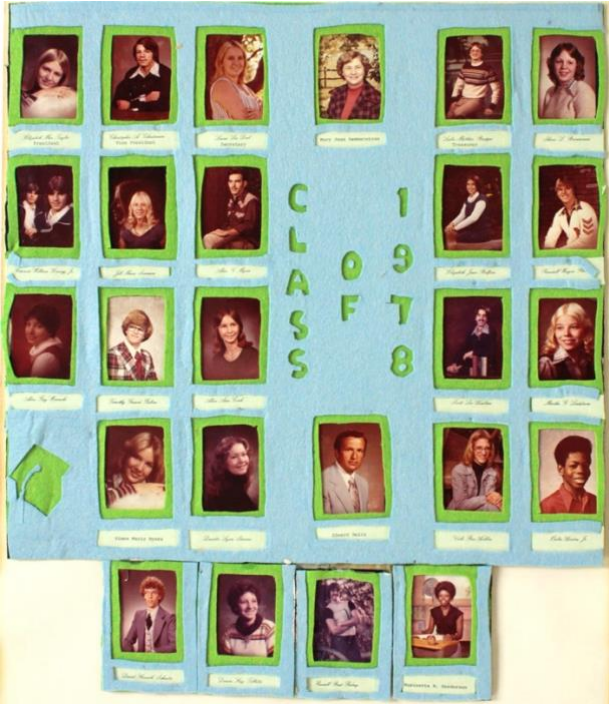

You might be wondering how big your graduating class size was. Or which class had the largest graduating class size ever?

Here are the TOP FIVE largest graduating class sizes

1) 1984- 25 graduating students

2) 1978- 23 graduating students

5) 1972- 21 graduating students

Yearbook page for 1972 featuring portraits of 11 students and the school logo. The page is titled "NEBRASKA SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF" and "1972 TIGERS". The central logo features a building and the text "Nebraska School for the Deaf, Omaha - Founded 1887".

Top row of portraits (left to right):

- Lee Bight
- Diane Brown
- Shirley Day
- James Larson
- Gerald Haskley
- David Pipp

Bottom row of portraits (left to right):

- Harold Genger
- Marlyn Schmidt
- Lucille Martin
- Brenda Martin
- Larry Johnson

Yearbook page featuring portraits of 10 students arranged in two rows of five.

Top row of portraits (left to right):

- Joan Harris
- Gloria Baker
- Eileen Hunsick
- Debbie Shalberg
- Ethel Ludwig

Bottom row of portraits (left to right):

- Randy Traugh
- Gary Thibbe
- Cheryl Puff
- Joel Elstrom
- Dennis Vanzo

